

dear fcc.

i think the opportunity to amend the spirit of the american constitution by synergizing the activities of print media with broadcast media should not be passed up. the united states of america is a large nation, with an unduly diverse population of citizen-consumers, that requires a soft-hand to delicately manage the thoughts and desires of its people. the free market can only work if people are free from having to think about other things, like politics. all other superfluous freedoms are a nice ideal, but reality demands something a little more nuanced. a carefully constructed and controlled public sphere is the first, and most important, step in building a brave new frontier. stay the course and a thousand points of light, junior. (and could we please have more stories about britney's tits.)

darryl magee (another smartass canadian)